Statistics show that at some point in their lives, most women will be responsible for handling their finances. For some women, that responsibility is exciting but for others it may be terrifying. Lauren Lindsay, CFP, is a fee-only planner and educator who has spent many years conducting seminars to educate people on how to make better financial decisions. In this webinar, she will address the financial issues specific to women, such as the fact that we are likely to live longer--- but on a smaller amount of money. She will teach tips to help with budgeting and to get your debt under control, as well as review basic tenants of financial planning areas such as insurance, education planning, benefits and estate planning. There will be opportunities for questions throughout the webinar so you will have a chance to get your specific concerns answered. We hope you will join us for this insightful, educational event.
